(“Cho Dang Gol” or the “Restaurant”), and Kihyun Lee (the “Individual Defendant”) (the Restaurant and the Individual Defendant are collectively referred to herein as “Defendants”), hereby allege as follows:

NATURE OF THE CLAIMS

1. Defendants subjected Plaintiffs, who worked as a kitchen worker and a server , and other similarly-situated employees at Cho Dang Gol to numerous violations of federal and state laws during their employment, including: (a) failure to pay minimum wages in violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act (“FLSA”), 29 U.S.C. § 201, et seq. and the New York Labor Law (“NYLL”), §650 et seq.; (b) failure to pay overtime wages in violation of the FLSA § 207 and NYLL § 650 et seq.; (c) illegal retention of employee gratuities in violation of FLSA § 203(m)(2)(B) and NYLL § 196-d; (d) unlawful deduction from employees’ wage (e) failure to pay for all hours worked in violation of Plaintiffs and all such other similarly situated persons are jointly referred to herein as the "FLSA Collective."

3. Plaintiffs' claims under the NYLL are brought as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 23 on behalf of themselves and on behalf of all other similarly situated persons who were employed by Defendants as "Service/Front of the House ("FOH") Staffs, Kitchen workers, and all other similar positions" during the applicable limitations period (the "NYLL Class Period"). Plaintiffs and all other such similarly situated persons are jointly referred to herein as the "NYLL Class."

4. Plaintiffs also bring individual claims for unlawful retaliation pursuant to FLSA § 215 and NYLL § 215.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 as this action involves federal questions regarding the deprivation of Plaintiffs', the FLSA Collective's, and the NYLL Class's rights under the FLSA. The Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' related claims arising under State law pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a).

6. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to this action, including the unlawful employment practices alleged herein, occurred in this district, namely Manhattan, New York.

9. Defendant HAND Hospitality LLC is a New York limited liability corporation with a service of process address of 38 West 32nd Street, Suite 1400, New York NY 10001. HAND Hospitality LLC operates 13 restaurants including Cho Dang Gol in New York.

10. Defendant Cho Dang Gol LLC is a New York limited liability corporation with a service of process address of 38 West 32nd Street, Suite 1400, New York NY 10001. Cho Dang Gol LLC operates the restaurant Cho Dang Gol at 55 W. 35th Street New York, NY 10001.

13. Defendant Kihyun Lee is the chef and the sole owner of Cho Dang Gol and, upon information and belief, an adult resident of the state of New York. Mr. Lee exercises sufficient control of Cho Dang Gol's day-to-day operations, including, but not limited to, how employees are paid, to be considered an "employer" within the meaning of all applicable statutes.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

Minimum Wage and Overtime Wage Violation

14. Defendants paid Plaintiff Goo a fixed wage regardless of the hours she worked in a day or in a week.

15. Defendants paid Plaintiff Goo in cash weekly during the relevant period.

16. Defendants deducted Plaintiff Goo's wage in 25% of her cash payroll as tax withholding but they never paid tax for Plaintiff.

17. Defendants were/are permitted, under the FLSA and NYLL, to pay certain tipped employees at a statutory hourly rate that is less than the standard hourly minimum wage rate so long as the "tips" or "gratuities" that such tipped employee is expected to receive, when added to the hourly wages, meet or exceed the standard hourly minimum wage, and so long as all tips received by the employees are retained by the employee, and no portion of the tips are retained by Defendants or given to employees in non-tipped positions.

18. However, Defendants have not entitled to avail themselves of the reduced minimum wage by applying the tip credit allowance for Plaintiff Hwang, the FLSA Collective, and the NYLL Class, because Defendants would retain tips and would pay a portion of the tips earned by Plaintiff Hwang, the FLSA Collective and the NYLL Class to managerial staff. Specifically, the manager of Cho Dang Gol would each retain/receive some portion of servers' tip allocation each day.

19. Upon information and belief, Defendants also siphoned off a portion of the tips earned by Plaintiff Hwang, the FLSA Collective, and the NYLL Class to pay the salaries of other staff, including the salaries of the Restaurant's other employees who were not tipped employees and did not participate in the tip pool.

20. As such, Defendants were obligated to pay Plaintiff, the FLSA Collective, and the NYLL Class the standard hourly minimum wage rate, and not any reduced minimum wage through the application of a tip credit.

21. Defendants tried to hide their practice of issuing tips to Plaintiff Hwang and the FLSA collective and the NYLL Class by failing to be transparent about and provide documentation such as tip pool sheets substantiating how much tips were collected and how they were being allocated and paid out each day. Certain staff members who repeatedly asked questions about how their pay was calculated were.

22. As a result of the above unlawful practices, Plaintiffs, the FLSA Collective, and NYLL Class were not paid minimum wages, in violation of the FLSA and NYLL.

FLSA § 203(m)(2)(B) and New York Labor Law § 196-d Violations

23. As alleged above, during Plaintiffs' employment and at all relevant times during the FLSA Collective Period and NYLL Class Period, Defendants unlawfully retained 25% of cash payroll from Plaintiff Goo and other members of the NYLL Class who were paid in cash.

24. As such, Defendants are required to disgorge and pay back all cash payroll deductions they unlawfully retained to Plaintiff, the FLSA Collective, and the NYLL Class, along with liquidated damages and interest.

25. Shaving Time During Plaintiffs' employment and the FLSA Collective Period and NYLL Class Period, Plaintiffs and members of FLSA Collective and NYLL Class clocked in and out through the Cho Dang Gol's POS system. But Defendants paid them a few hours less than all hours they worked in a week instead of paying them all hours they worked.

26. As part of their regular business practices, Defendants have intentionally, willfully, and repeatedly engaged in a pattern, practice, and/or policy of violating the FLSA with respect to Plaintiffs and the FLSA collective. This policy and pattern or practice include but are not limited to, willfully shaving their employees' time in order to avoid paying for all of the hours worked by Plaintiffs and the FLSA Collective.

27. As a result of this and other "Time Shaving," Defendants unlawfully failed to pay Plaintiffs, the FLSA Collective, and the NYLL Class minimum wages in violation of the FLSA and NYLL, overtime wages in violation of the FLSA and NYLL, and straight time wages for all hours worked in violation of NYLL § 191(1)(a)(i).

Wage Notice and Wage Statement Violations

28. Defendants also failed to provide Plaintiffs and members of the NYLL Class wage notices and/or accurate wage notices as required by NYLL §§ 195(1) and (2) at the time of their hiring or when any changes to the information required in the wage notices took place.

29. Accordingly, by failing to comply with their wage notice requirements, Defendants owe Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class $50 per day for every day such notice was not provided, up to $5,000 per employee.

30. In addition, Defendants failed to furnish Plaintiff and members of the NYLL Class with wage statements and/or accurate wage statements, i.e., pay stubs, that included, inter alia, their hours worked, any minimum wage allowances that were applied, and the correct amount of tip wages they should have and were legally owed.

31. By failing to comply with their wage statements obligations, Defendants owe Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class $250 for each violation, up to $5,000 per employee.

Unlawful Retaliation Against Plaintiff

32. Along with other employees, Plaintiff Hwang began questioning Defendants about whether they were being properly paid all the wages and tips they were owed after noticing that their weekly wages were significantly lower than the estimated tip that they received a day.

33. Defendants' management refused to be transparent about how the servers' wages were calculated, saying instead that the Restaurant "doesn't show any of the employees its total tips," without any explanation or support for what they represented. This was simply an effort to obfuscate and confuse Ms. Hwang further.

34. Ms. Hwang also questioned whether management and ownership took a portion of the service staff's tips. But Defendants never disclosed daily cash and credit card tip amount.

35. Defendants also deducted about 25% of the wage that the employees received as employees' tax withholding. But they have neither provided IRS 1099 or W2 tax forms to their employees nor remitted their employees' payroll tax to IRS.

36. However, within a week or two of Ms. Hwang's engagement in protected activity, the management of the restaurant started to treat Ms. Hwang and other employees unfavorably.

37. On September 16, 2023, Ms. Hwang was working at the restaurant. The restaurant manager and assistant manager encountered issues with tip allocation for employees due to the absence of printed credit card batch settlements for lunch transactions. Ms. Hwang suggested closing the sales for lunch to address the problem.

38. The following day, she was terminated from her position.

FLSA COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

39. Plaintiffs bring their FLSA claims as a collective action on behalf of themselves and on behalf of all other similarly situated persons who were employed by Defendants as “Service/Front of the House (“FOH”) Staffs, Kitchen workers, and all other similiary employees employed by Defendants during the FLSA Collective Period.”

40. At all relevant times, Plaintiffs and the other members of the FLSA Collective were similarly situated, had substantially similar job requirements, were paid in the same manner and under the same common policies, plans, and practices, and were subject to Defendants’ failure to pay them at the legally required minimum wage for all hours worked, and overtime wages for hours worked over 40 in a week.

41. During the FLSA Collective Period, Defendants were fully aware of the duties performed by Plaintiffs and the FLSA Collective, and that those duties were not exempt from the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA.

42. As a result of Defendants’ conduct as alleged herein, Defendants violated 29 U.S.C. § 206 by not paying Plaintiffs and the FLSA Collective the prevailing minimum wage for all hours worked, 29 U.S.C. § 203(m)(2)(B) by deducting 25% from Plaintiffs and the FLSA collective’s payroll during the FLSA collective period.

43. As a result of Defendants’ conduct, Defendants are liable to Plaintiffs and the FLSA Collective for the full amount of their unpaid minimum and overtime wages unlawfully deducted, plus an additional equal amount in liquidated damages, interest, plus the attorneys’ fees and costs incurred by Plaintiffs and the FLSA Collective.

44. While the exact number of the FLSA Collective is unknown to Plaintiffs at the present time, upon information and belief, there are more than 40 other similarly situated persons who were employed by Defendants as “Service/Front of the House (“FOH”) Staffs, Kitchen workers, and all other employees during the FLSA Collective Period.”

RULE 23 CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

45. Plaintiff brings her NYLL claims as a class action pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 on behalf of themselves and behalf of all other similarly situated persons who were employed by Defendants as “Service/Front of the House (“FOH”) Staffs, Kitchen workers, and all other employees during the NYLL Class Period.”

46. Plaintiffs allege that they and other NYLL Class Members were/are: (i) not paid the prevailing minimum wage for all hours worked; (ii) not paid overtime wages for all hours worked over 40 hours in a week; (iii) unlawfully denied gratuities; (iv) unlawful deduction from employees’ wage; (v) not paid wages for all hours worked; (vi) not provided with appropriate wage notices, and (vii) not furnished with accurate appropriate wage statements.

47. The basic job duties of the NYLL Class were the same as or substantially similar to those of Plaintiff, and the NYLL Class was paid in the same manner and under the same common policies, plans, and practices as Plaintiff.

48. Defendants subjected both the NYLL Class and Plaintiff, to the same unlawful policies, plans, and practices, including not paying the prevailing minimum wage for all hours worked or overtime wages for hours worked over 40 in a week, deduction wage, not paying for all hours worked, and not furnishing appropriate wage notices and wage statements.

49. During the NYLL Class Period, Defendants were fully aware of the duties performed by Plaintiff and the NYLL Class, and that those duties were not exempt from the applicable provisions of the NYLL and/or its regulations.

50. As a result of Defendants’ conduct as alleged herein, Defendants violated the NYLL and/or its regulations by not paying the prevailing minimum wage for all hours worked or overtime wages for hours worked over 40 in a week, retaining wages, not paying for all hours worked, and not furnishing appropriate wage notices and wage statements.

51. As a result of Defendants' conduct, Defendants are liable to Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class for the full amount of their unpaid minimum wage, unpaid overtime wages, the amount of wages retained by Defendants, wages for all hours worked, penalties for failing to issue appropriate wage notices up to $5,000 per person, and penalties for failing to furnish appropriate wage notices of up to $5,000 per person, plus additional amounts (where applicable) in liquidated damages, interest, plus the attorneys' fees and costs incurred by Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class.

52. Certification of the NYLL Class's claims as a class action is the most efficient and economical means of resolving the questions of law and fact common to Plaintiffs' claims and the claims of the NYLL Class. Plaintiffs have the standing to seek such relief because of the adverse effects that Defendants' unlawful compensation policies and practices have had on them individually and on members of the NYLL Class. Without class certification, the same evidence and issues would be subject to re-litigation in a multitude of individual lawsuits with an attendant risk of inconsistent adjudications and conflicting obligations. Certification of the NYLL Class is the most efficient and judicious means of presenting the evidence and arguments necessary to resolve such questions for Plaintiff, the NYLL Class, and Defendants.

53. Plaintiffs' claims raise questions of law and fact common to the NYLL Class. Among these questions are:

- Whether Defendants employed Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class Members within the meaning of the NYLL;
- Whether Defendants paid Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class Members the federal and state minimum wage for all hours worked during the NYLL Class Period;
- Whether Defendants paid Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class Members overtime wages for all hours worked over 40 in a workweek;
- Whether Defendants' failure to pay the prevailing minimum wage or overtime wages constitute violations of the FLSA or NYLL;

- At what common rate, or rates subject to common methods of calculation, were Defendants required to pay Plaintiffs and the Class Members for their work;
- Whether Defendants illegally retained Plaintiffs' and the NYLL Class Members' wage;
- Whether Defendants failed to pay Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class wages for all hours worked;
- Whether Defendants failed to issue Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class appropriate wage notices in violation of the NYLL;
- Whether Defendants failed to furnish Plaintiffs and the NYLL Class with appropriate wage statements in violation of the NYLL; and
- Whether Defendants' violations of the FLSA and NYLL and/or their regulations were willful.

54. These common questions of law and fact arise from the same course of events, and each class member will make similar legal and factual arguments to prove liability.

55. Plaintiffs are members of the NYLL Class that they seek to represent. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the NYLL Class. The relief Plaintiff seeks for the unlawful policies and practices complained of herein are also typical of the relief which is sought on behalf of the NYLL Class.

56. The Plaintiffs' interests are co-extensive with those of the NYLL Class that they seek to represent in this case. Plaintiffs are willing and able to represent the NYLL Class fairly and vigorously pursue their similar individual claims in this action. Plaintiffs have retained counsel who is qualified and experienced in labor and employment class action litigation, and who is able to meet the time and fiscal demands necessary to litigate a class action of this size and complexity. The combined interests, experience, and resources of Plaintiffs and their counsel to litigate the individual and NYLL Class claims at issue, in this case, satisfy the adequacy of the representation requirement of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(4).

57. Defendants have acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the NYLL Class, making final injunctive and declaratory relief appropriate with respect to the NYLL Class.

58. Injunctive and declaratory relief is the predominant relief sought in this case because they are the culmination of the proof of Defendants' individual and class-wide liability and the essential predicate for Plaintiffs' and the NYLL Class's entitlement to monetary and non-monetary remedies to be determined at a later stage of the proceedings.

59. The common issues of law and facts affecting Plaintiffs' claims and those of the NYLL Class Members, including the common issues identified above, predominate over any issues affecting only individual claims.

60. A class action is superior to other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of Plaintiffs' claims and the claims of the NYLL Class. There will be no difficulty in the management of this action as a class action.

61. The cost of proving Defendants' violations of the NYLL and the supporting regulations makes it impracticable for Plaintiff and the NYLL Class to pursue their claims individually. Maintenance of a class action promotes judicial economy by consolidating a large class of Plaintiffs litigating identical claims. The claims of the NYLL Class interrelate such that the interests of the members will be fairly and adequately protected in their absence. Additionally, the questions of law and fact common to the NYLL Class arise from the same course of events and each class member makes similar legal and factual arguments to prove Defendants' liability.

62. The NYLL Class is so numerous that the joinder of all members is impracticable. While the exact number of the NYLL Class is unknown to Plaintiff at the present time, upon information and belief, there are more than 40 similarly situated persons who were/are employed by Defendants as "Service/Front of the House ("FOH") Staffs, Kitchen workers, and all other similarly employees, during the NYLL Class Period."
